The Laboratory of Archaeology and Georgia Archaeological Site File (GASF) are happy to answer questions about archaeology and artifacts. Be sure to check out the Georgia Department of Natural resources website (georgiashpo.org/preservationlaws) for more information on the do's and don'ts of amateur archaeology. Please be aware it is illegal to collect artifacts on property you do not own without explicit permission from the landowner. For questions about archaeological sites, or if you want to submit a site of your own, email gasf@uga.edu or visit archaeology.uga.edu for more information.

Thanks for your interest in archaeology! We will attempt to provide you with as much information as possible. We are unable to give out any information about existing archaeological sites, nor can we visit potential sites. We also cannot assign monetary value to or appraise an artifact. For questions relating to dinosaur fossils or rocks, we recommend contacting a paleontologist or the UGA Department of Geology respectively.
